As a result of the break the mills are now operating at about one-half capacity, necessitating the reduction of the working force. The carders and spinners are silent, but year fortunately the contract of the silent but for t very fortunately the stock of spun materials was sufficient to enable the looms to continue as before. An order for another holler has already been placed, but it will, of course, be sometime before the worthless steam generator is replaced and the new heller ready for full operation.

As was to be expected, the rumor sond became current in manufacturing and hushess circles that the mills were about to close for the season, the news of the break not being generally known. For the purpose of ascertaining what foundation there was for the story a Herald representative interviewed General Manager Jennings and from that eral Manager Jennings and from that gentleman learned the true nature of the case. On account of the lack of steam it was necessary to reduce the operations of the mill, but there will operations of the mill, but there will be no general close down, said the gentleman. This break comes at a most inopportune time, just when the winter season is about to open. However, the utilis have been operating to their full capacity for the past several months and the stock of heavy goods and hosiery is very extensive. The institution is prepared to meet all orders. The looms will be kept in operation constantly unless the stock of spun stuff should give out before the new boller is placed, in which event it would, of course, be necessary to cease operations there until the stock was replonished.

The regular weekly meeting of the joint city and county building committee yesterday afternoon was scaled.

not calculated to increase the orders of the woolen milis and in consequence the orders received by the Provo and the Descret mills are not entirely sailsfactory, although the general business is a great increase over that of 1892.

The indications are, however, that the demands made on the manufacturies when once the season actually opens will be heavier than for years. Utah's people have at last found that the home mills can manufacture a class of goods right up to the standard, even taking the product of the New England mills as that standard. As a result they will patronize the local institutions to the exclusion of all others. The Provo mills are operating every loom and spinalle and giving employment to an increased number of people.

MEANS BOTH RESERVATIONS.

Delegate Rawlins Explains the Provisions of the Opening Act.

There seems to be some doubt in the minds of the people of this territory as to the real provisions of the Indian reservation act and at the great mass meeting held some days ago in the theatre all resolutions proposed referred to the opening of the Uncompalage reservation only. In response to an inquiry prepounded by a Herald representative, Delegate Rawlins yesterday stated that the act applied to both great tracts. The conditions are not identical, however, the reason being that the government now owns the lands of the Uncompalagre and the commission to be appointed by the president will have not hing further to do than to allow the Uncompalagre and the commission to be appointed by the president will have to be created by the problem to do than to allot the small tracts to be occupied by the Indians. Then will immediately follow the opening of the laints for settlament. Such is not the case with the Unitah reservation, however, for the lands there are claimed by the Indians and it will be necessary for the commission to treat with them before the allotment is made. This work will consume some little time and throw the opening of the Unitah far behind that of the Unitah far severally known, the lands of the Unitah are considerably more
